DEAR READERS

Zimbabwe and Botswana say they are ill-equipped to deal with poachers without the money from ivory sales, especially because earnings from tourism have dwindled due to COVID—19 related travel restrictions since 2020. Zimbabwe has opened an international conference to try to win international support for its campaign to be allowed to sell its stockpile of seized ivory. See lead article for more information.

Zimbabwe:

Diplomats assess ivory stockpile in Zimbabwe and discuss conservation

The Zimbabwe Parks Management Authority (ZimParks) recently opened its closely guarded vaults containing 151'000 tonnes of ivory and rhino horn to a team of Western diplomats led by the Ambassador of Switzerland, Mr. Niculin Jäger.

Zimbabwe's estimated 70,000 elephants are over the carrying capacity of its national parks. There has been increased human-wildlife conflict in national parks that are close to human settlement.

The ZimParks director-general, Fulton Mangwanya said a "one-off sale" of the collection, taken from smugglers and poachers, and harvested from carcasses found in the country's national parks, could raise US$600 million, and the proceeds go towards wildlife management.

The sale of ivory has been banned since 1989 by Cites, the international body that monitors endangered species.

"Conservation and prevention of illegal wildlife trade is an international issue because of the involvement of criminal syndicates in illegal wildlife trade, hence there is a need to strengthen international cooperation," said Ambassador Jäger.

On behalf of the delegation, Ambassador Jäger said Zimbabwe has a rich bio-diversity and the delegation was keen to continue providing support towards the conservation of the endangered animals.

Zimbabwe: Swiss-Zimbabwe Business Chamber elects new board of directors

The Swiss-Zimbabwe Business Chamber has announced a new expanded Board of Directors in order to foster a vibrant business community while serving as a convenor and catalyst for economic cooperation between Switzerland and Zimbabwe.

With Switzerland being one of the leading European investor in Zimbabwe, the board members of the Business Chamber have promised to play a significant role in promoting the trade relationship between the two countries going forward. The new board will also act as a platform for cooperation with various players including small-to-medium enterprises, multinational companies and the Nigel Drummond of Swiss Bioceutical and Geoffery Ndungwa, the Managing Director of Lafarge Cement Zimbabwe.

TimeDate Music – for peace in the world

On the International Day of Peace, 21st of September 2023, this major event will take place on many stages around the world. The event is based on the idea by Swiss musician and project initiator Helena Rööfli.

On this day, choirs around the world, will perform «The Peacemakers», a composition for choir and orchestra by Karl Jenkins. Based on the different time zones, the words of peace in this musical work will resound around the globe uninterrupted for 24 hours.

Give peace a voice

With this idea and unique message of peace the organisers are hoping to send out a signal for worldwide solidarity and human dignity. An issue more relevant and urgent than ever!

At the concert in Switzerland Lea Suter – the activist «Peacemaker» and UN peace representative – will demonstrate her experience in the field. Her impressive portraits of «current Peacemakers» from war zones will accompany the concert and strengthen the musical appeal for the global search for peace.

It would be desirable for the concerts in other countries to also be accompanied by an active peace messenger.

«An appeal to all of us, wherever we are, to contribute to an uncompromising desire for peace and a 'never-again-war' attitude». QUOTE BY LEA SUTER – WWW.PEACEPRINTS.CH

The association TimeDate, with its headquarters in Lucerne – Switzerland, has taken the responsibility for organising this unique worldwide musical event for the International Day of Peace on 21st September 2023. The association is further responsible for the concert in Lucerne.

Have we sparked your interest?

We are looking for enthusiastic choirs (globally), supportive sponsors and creative contributors, who, through music, would like to strengthen positive peace efforts throughout the world.

Join the movement and raise your voice with us. United our call for peace will be stronger!

If you have any questions or would like to contact us, please write to us at: info@timedate.ch

Dear fellow Swiss, finally there seems to be some movement on the E-Voting front.
